

The ability to monitor your ships is vital to maintain a competitive edge in today's intense business world.

Aerospace & Marine International (AMI) leads in the invention, development and production of the industry's most advanced weather information technologies. We translate advanced technologies into value for our customers through our professional solutions and services. Thus, AMI has developed a highly versatile yet easy to use fleet management system for shore-based operators and managers.

AMI integrates the real-time services and advice to your vessels with a state-of-the art informational system for the shore-side controllers along with ready access to our meteorological expertise. It is the comprehensive support your company needs to effectively compete in today's shipping environment.

AMI Fleet Manager is not just a window to view your fleet status - it is a warehouse of information - graphs, charts and data that can help you make your operational fleet management decisions. Find out how we can put AMI Fleet Manager to work for you today.
